ZEBRAS ENJOY FEW HOURS OF LIBERTY

Three of Ringling Bros. Pets Escaped From Their Cage at South Janesville Wednesday Afternoon.

For twenty minutes Wednesday there was a lively chase in the South Janesville Rards of the Northwestern road, that recalled the days of the old time circus days of Burr Robbins and other big shows that used to make this city their winter quarters and gave the younger generation a taste of capturing wild game without having to follow Roosevelt to Africa to accomplish it.

As train No. 3 of the Ringling Bros. circus, en route for Baraboo to go into winter quarters, stopped in the railway yards, three handsome zebras managed to escape from their cage, jump off the flat car their cage was on and scamper away, seeking the prairie land nearby that evidently reminded them of their native land.

The first to notice them were some of the machinists of the road who immediately gave chase. Everything from a sledgehammer to a coupling pin was called into use before they were rounded up in a corner near the round house and taken captive. They had evidently enjoyed their taste of freedom for they readily submitted to being led quickly back to their cage and safely locked up.

While it lasted it was exciting and when it was all over one of the captors remarked: "Well last summer monkeys loose in the Rock river jungle did not do as much mischief on the prairie land. What does a few have to go to Africa for anyway. He can find all sorts of strange game right here at home."

CAME TO JANESVILLE TO SEE THE SIGHTS

Privilege of Seeing it Through Beer Glasses Cost John Johnson Twenty-five Dollars.

John Johnson of Chicago came to Janesville to see what was going on, although he quit his job in Rockford about two weeks ago. He did see the town, but through a multitude of beer glasses, if not glasses of stout liquor, and it cost him $25 and costs which he paid. By so doing he avoided seeing how it feels to work for forty days under the provisions of the Huber law.

Andrew Anderson of Stoughton was not so well provided for contingencies as was Johnson. It was also found that he had been locked up in the police station on a previous occasion, besides having been taken into custody by the police at Madison, and he was sentenced to thirty days at hard labor. Anderson was placed under arrest at the St. Paul railway depot.

George Wheeler of Broadhead, an entire stranger to the court, pleaded guilty to being found in a state of intoxication, and paid a fine of $15 and costs which he considered "very steep." He is an elderly man and a bachelor, and stated almost in tears that he felt more sorry for his team than for himself.

Anderson later made arrangements to pay his fine.

COMMENCE TO RAZE ANCIENT LANDMARK

Building Until Recently Used as Blacksmith Shop by E. Ray Lloyd Is Being Torn Down.

With the razing of the old frame building at 207 E. Milwaukee street, which is well under way, there will be erased from the business district Janesville's landmark more than fifty years' old. Recently this property and the lot adjoining it on the east were purchased by the contracting firm of Ford, Boos & School, who it is understood will erect a modern business building on the site although they have not yet made public their plans. The last occupant of the building was E. Ray Lloyd, who used it as a blacksmith shop.

Half a century ago and for many years afterward the first story of the building was used as a saloon. August Lutz was succeeded in this business by a Mr. Nolsky. The place was the scene of occasional disturbances and at one time a bar keg was thrown through the front window, by a muscular tippler.

Dennis Morrissey, who is now, and has for many years been blacksmith for the Ringling Shows, was the next occupant of the building, and converted it into a blacksmith shop, for which purpose it has since been used. The shop afterwards passed into the hands of the father of E. Ray Lloyd, who himself learned the trade there. He continued the business after his father's retirement.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

HE WANTS "GENTLE" WORK.

"Evening or night employment desired at any kind of GENTLE work by American, twenty-seven, good education."

(The capitals are the writer's; otherwise the advertisement reads as it appeared in a city newspaper not long ago.)

The writer wants "gentle" work, notice. He does not say that he wants hard work or honest work. To his credit be it said that he asks for work—

But it must be "gentle." There is no definition of gentility in the advertisement, but the presumption is strong that the applicant wants work that will not soil his hands. He wants employment of the sort that will not "lower him in the eyes of his friends."

He wants work such as is not generally looked down upon.

There are too many like him—too many consumers of the goods produced by others, too many to whom the thought of hard, honest, willing toil, close to the soil and close to the materials of life itself, is abhorrent. The cities are full of such.

If this man had the power of thinking deeply he would know that his life and his life and yours and the lives of all of us depend entirely on the men and women who do work that is not "gentle."

Plowing is not gentle, for it hardens the hands and soils them. Making shoes is not gentle, for there is weary back break in it. Digging ditches is not gentle, for it makes a man get right down close to muddy, ungentle Mother Earth.

Yet all these things and many, many others that are disparaged must be done lest the advertiser and all others perish from the face of the earth.

The disdain of any sort of honest work is a cancer that eats into a nation's life. It is the force that tends directly and inevitably toward the creation of "upper" and "lower" classes. It divides and alienates men from their brothers.

Many centuries ago there was trouble in England. The poor were too poor, and the rich had too much. Oppressive laws made the lot of the poor even worse than they should have been. Then arose a man with the gift of irony, and he wrote verses which awakened the minds of the poor and, through the awakening, brought about in time betterment of their condition.

The verses were simple and easily remembered. Some of them have lived to this day. In them we find:

When Adam delved and Eve span,
Who was then the gentleman?

Let the advertiser and others who think as he does about "gentle" work ponder the words.

TWO CHICAGO YOUTHS ARE DETAINED HERE

Thomas Peterson and Harold Anderson Picked Up by Police—Await Word from Parents.

Thomas Peterson and Harold Anderson, Chicago youths, aged about sixteen years, were picked up by the police at the Northwestern station yesterday afternoon. On being questioned they admitted riding out of Chicago on a freight train. They refused to state where they had intended to go or why they left home, maintaining that they merely wanted to steal a ride in the Chicago yards, but that the freight was traveling too fast for them to get off before it arrived in Janesville. Anderson gave the address of his parents as 1611 North Talmann avenue, and Peterson said his parents lived at 3710 Le Moyne avenue.

Chief of Police E. H. Ransom telephoned to the police headquarters in Chicago this morning and requested that the parents of the boys be notified of their detentions and that the local police be given instructions concerning their return to their homes. The boys were without money.

ARTISTIC FLY TRAP

Poison in Vase of Flowers Instead of in a Saucer.

With all the fly traps that have been invented since the dawn of modern man to design one that was artistic, as well as effective. This is a vase holding a bunch of artificial flowers and with poisonous liquid in the hollow center to attract the flies. The fly crawls down into the vase to drink and never crawls up again. This also is a good feature, for when insects were poisoned by liquid in an open saucer they usually flew away and died somewhere else—sometimes in the food. When the vase is more or less filled with dead flies, the flowers can be removed and the contents emptied in the yard or down a drain. The casual observer would never take this ornament to be a death trap.

FOAM AS FIRE EXTINGUISHER
More Effective Than Chemicals or Water and Less Damaging.
The household generally will be interested in the new fire extinguisher, which has been recently introduced, for the reason that its use will not entail the damage done by water and sometimes by chemicals which are contained in extinguishers. The new extinguisher makes use of foam in smothering the flames, and when it has done its work the residue made by the extinguishing material is innocuous. (Oil fires and electrical fires are not covered.)

Long Sentences.
For the longest sentence on record we must go to the French. In "Les Misérables" Victor Hugo has one sentence that runs through a hundred lines, and earlier in the book, in one of the chapters descriptive of Waterloo, there are over fifty lines without a full stop. England's record rests under official patronage, for it would appear to be the seventh section of the foreign enlistment act, which does not stop until it has very nearly reached its six hundredth word.

SPORT Snap-Shots

Knockout Mars who recently met Johnny Kilbane and a K. O. at Cincinnati showed poor judgment when he went up against a champion so early in his career. He had fought but ten professional battles before and though a wonderful fighter for one so young in the game, he would have prospered had he waited for a little more experience before going up against the best talent we have. Mars put up a remarkable battle and unquestionably gave Kilbane the hardest work he had encountered since his bout with Abie Attell. But even so it was bad judgment on the part of the youngster and his manager for had he fought more lesser lights and gradually worked his way up he would have been able to meet the champ under much more favorable conditions. There are lots and lots of experienced fighters with whom Mars might have been matched and he could have learned a great deal about the fight game and experience that Mars previously lacked when he went after the Irish champion. A few hard blows handed Kilbane by Mars early in the fight stirred up all the fire there was in Johnny, which proved to be quite a bit. Throwing science and fancy stepping aside after the first few rounds, the champion went after his opponent in a way that he had never done since the day he was told. And he convinced all the spectators that he was a fighter as well as a boxer. Mars fought back with spirit, and in fact it was this same gumption of the youngster that brought him the blow that laid him cold. There is little doubt in the minds of those who saw the fight that Mars will be able to make a remarkable showing against almost any one else in the class. His career, however, would have been even more enviable had he had the good judgment to tackle others than the champ at such an early stage.

A new suggestion has recently been made for evening up the race in the American and National leagues and making competition keener, and the hunch has at least the saving grace of originality. The plan proposed is that the four leading teams in each league—the first division of each league—be put together to compose a league, which might be called the A league, and the leaders of each league or the second division, be made to compose the B league. In this way the lastest teams would be fighting on another and there would be considerable of an effort put forth by every club to land in the upper division. Of course at the end of a season the league would be re-arranged, selecting as at the beginning the two first divisions and the two second divisions to compose the two leagues, A and B. A team playing in the B league one season would have the chance of working into the A league the season following by simply landing in the upper division. The unfortunate feature of this idea, however, is the fact that it doesn't provide for the schedule in a practical way. Geographically the thing would fall through. One league might be composed of five closely bunched eastern teams and then a few far western ones, so that the long jumps on trips away from home would play hob with the schedule.

Jack Fluhner, a Toledo high school player, is said by all who have seen him perform to be the greatest interscholastic football player on the gridiron today and many claim him the equal of any of the stars of the college teams and even so experts who have watched him gambol over the football field declare that he would be a great help to the fastest college team in the country—including Harvard. In a recent game with the Central High team of Cleveland Fluhner advanced the ball all told some 535 yards entirely by his own efforts. He carried the ball 240 yards and forward passed it 235. The Cleveland coach after the game declared that Fluhner was the greatest high school player he had ever seen in action and one of the greatest of all players, including prep schools and colleges. Quite a reputation for a mere school boy.

MANAGERS AMERICAN LEAGUE IN MEETING

Will Wind Up Affairs of Season Just Closed. To Consider Demands of Players' Fraternity.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—With reports of all the baseball clubs in the circuit present, the annual meeting of the American League began here today. While the gathering of the club owners and managers is primarily to wind up the affairs of the season just closed, several other matters of importance are scheduled for discussion. Chief of these is understood to be the demands of the players' fraternity and reforms in connection with the world's series in future.

The Baseball Players' Fraternity, claiming to represent 80 per cent of the major league players and also a large percentage of the players in the leading minor leagues, has come forth with a list of twenty demands accompanied by intimations that unless the demands are complied with or a satisfactory compromise agreed upon the club owners are likely to meet serious obstacles in signing up their players for next season.

The abolition of the reserve clause in all contracts is the principal demand of the players' fraternity. Next in importance is the demand that "when a player is transferred he shall be transferred subject to all of the terms of his contract." In effect, this means that when a major league club releases a player to a minor league club, the minor organization must pay the player the same salary his major league contract called for during the season.

Opinions expressed by some of the American League magnates before they went into session behind closed doors today indicated that they did not expect to take any formal action on the players' demands at the present meeting. The probabilities are that the entire matter will be turned over to President Ban Johnson to settle according to the dictates of his own judgment.

It is considered probable that both the American and National leagues will endeavor, at the start, to ignore the Players' Fraternity and its demands. In interviews and informal statements the club owners already have made it plain that they are disinclined to treat with the fraternity through its president and spokesman, "Doc" Fultz. Their objection to Fultz they would make it appear, is based on the ground that he is no longer an active player and in consequence is without standing in the game. But in reality the mere mention of the name of Fultz to a club owner has been the way to bring a David in the face of a bull, ever since David organized the fraternity and succeeded in rounding up enough players to make the organization a formidable one so long as the members hold together.

The players are not likely to get all

IS MACKLIN BEST COACH IN THE WEST

Coach Macklin.

Since the Michigan Agricultural college defeated the strong football teams of Wisconsin and Michigan, the question has frequently been asked: Is not Macklin, M. A. C. coach, the best coach in the West? He has taken green material and made one of the fastest, most dangerous eleven in Western football this season. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

RIGOROUS TRAINING CONFERENCE ELEVEN

E. J. Haumerson Describes Hardships of Making Championship Football Teams.

Football as it is played on a big time conference eleven was the topic discussed at the meeting of the Young Men's club of the Congregational church last evening at the church parlors. E. J. Haumerson, who played tackle on the University of Wisconsin eleven during 1901 to '03, recounted the struggles of the eleven from the early training stages to the celebrating of the victories.

"Football on a big eleven is hard, steady and diligent work and to make the team no athlete can show even signs of loafing," explained Haumerson. "The moment any player lets up in his work he finds a candidate almost equal to him ready to jump into his shoes and he has to fight all the harder to keep his position."

In starting with a hundred or more football men the winning out process takes place and all candidates join in the light practice regardless of the veterans and new material. The changing machine, its uses and advantages, early practice in tackling and charging were explained. After the coach had decided upon the regulars and scrubs, work is then started in signal practice.

"Our coach, who was one of the best quarter backs the game has produced, being picked for three straight years on the All-American eleven, was from Princeton, never developed over sixteen plays on one side of the line and tried to win were rarely a success. Princeton's style of plunging football was relied upon to bring the victories," said Haumerson, "and if an opponent worked a trick play on us it was some weeks before the coaches let us forget it."

Training was declared a big factor in the success of any team and the manner coaches brought the players down to a perfect physical condition for the championship game, including the two hours of signal practice each day, hours of hard scrimmage, running back punts until each player has the plays learned so well that they are second nature, was explained.

Before each big game the coach would have his assistants drill the opponents' plays and formations into the scrubs and the regulars would spend hours learning how to break up the shifts and short backs that they would later meet.

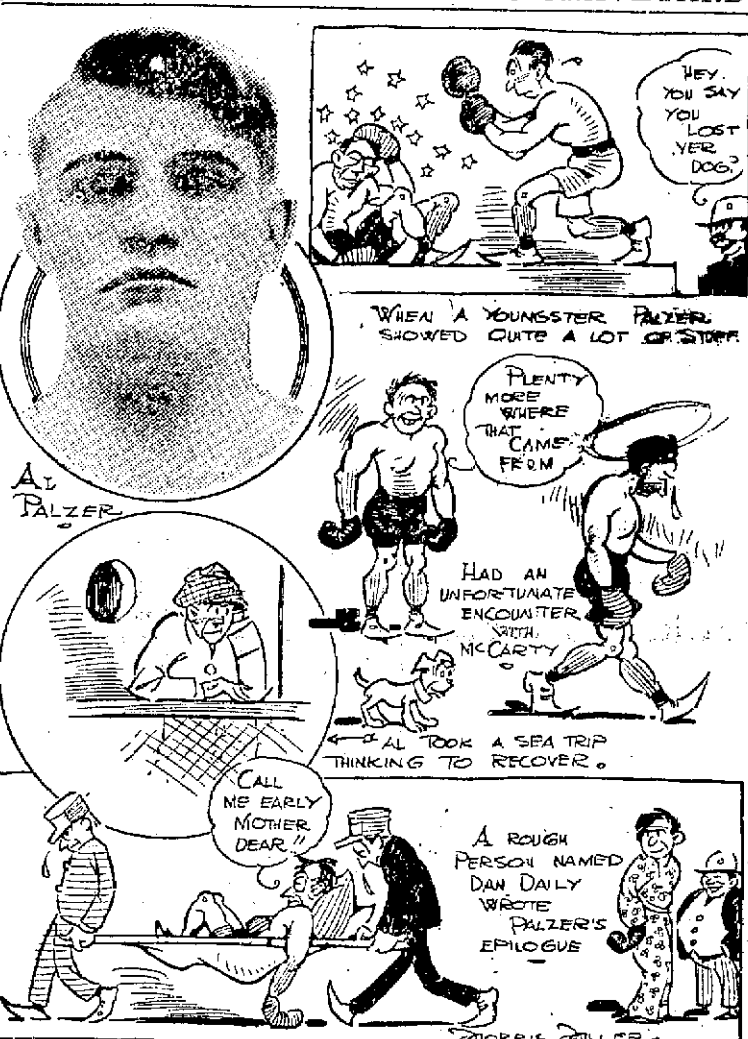

The training table was given a lengthy discussion by the speaker as to how the regulars and second team were given special tables and were forced to eat only food that would serve to put them in perfect physical condition. "In 1901 when Wisconsin won the conference championship the coach stated that after the deciding game with Chicago we could break training, every player could order what he wished at the players' bar, and that was given that night, and needless to say, the players were not bashful in ordering some things that were not wholesome and the wide variety of food ordered that night was a joke that was long remembered by the members of the team," commented the speaker. In explaining to the members the effects of the hard training, Mr. Haumerson stated that it was expected that every player should lose from four to five pounds after each night practice, the players being weighed every night before going to practice and before being rubbed and if the chart showed that they were not losing the necessary weight each night, the coaches knew they were loafing. Weight is not necessary for a football star, was the opinion of the speaker, who pointed out that in 1901

Minnesota outweighed the Wisconsin eleven fifteen pounds to the man, but speed and hitting the man first brought the victory to the Badgers by an 18 to 9 score.

Al. G. Jeffits gave an interesting talk on the Wisconsin-Minnesota contest last Saturday and told of the plays the Gophers worked on the Wisconsin team, enabling them to down the Badgers by an overwhelming score. The meeting proved of great interest to the members of the club, both speakers handling their topics in a manner that pleased the young men.

OF 150 RECRUITS TESTED THIS SEASON, EIGHTEEN MAKE GOOD; DEMAREE, SHAWKEY, AGNEW AND MARANVILLE AMONG "FINDS"

More than 150 ball players were either bought or drafted from the minor leagues last season by major league clubs. Looking over the lineup of the 16 big clubs but 18 new names have appeared regularly this season. Among those who have made good are Agnew, St. Louis Browns' catcher; Demaree, pitcher for the New York Giants; Shawkey, pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, and Maranville, Boston Brave infielder.

What "Honeymoon" Means. It was a custom among the old Tonic tribes to drink of diluted honey for thirty days, or a moon's age, after a wedding, and from this custom came the expression a honeymoon. At first, the Hun drank, it is said, so freely of hydromel on his marriage day that he died of suffocation.

WISCONSIN PATRIOTS.

With state taxes increased from four to eighteen million dollars, during the past decade, it is easy to understand that the public crib presents new attractions which an army of patriots are not slow to recognize. The number of men attached to the pay roll is in proportion to the increased revenue, and the list is still growing.

The primary law laid the foundation for perpetuity in office, and it has resulted in a political machine, which puts to blush any mechanical device of this kind ever discovered.

The Wausau Record-Herald, in discussing the situation, says:

"Astute gentlemen now in power at Madison have devised an elixir more potent than the goat-lymph of the late Doctor Brown-Sequard. Everybody remembers the theory of the goat-lymph. It was that if men of advanced years injected a little goat-lymph into their systems now and then it would make them 'just as young as they used to be.' The elixir of the Madison discoverers is intended to promote longevity and actually accomplishes its purpose.

"That is what makes the Wisconsin state machine the most powerful organization of its kind in the world. It has under its broad wings an army of officers—men who are drawing twice as much from the state treasury as they could command in any private employment—and these can be counted on to fight like Turks to hold their places. At the same time, by the creation of new places, the undertaking of new enterprises, and the collection of ever-increasing taxes, it enlists all who are hungry and thirsty.

"The ambitious young man of today has the alternative of going to work, making his own living, and paying an ever increasing proportion of it into the state treasury, or uniting with the reform machine, gently settling down into a fat official berth and living from the proceeds of the toil of others. The increase of state taxes from four millions to eighteen millions in a few years indicates the extent to which this idea has already been adopted. To millions of millions of taxation it will amount in the next ten years, nobody can even guess.

"The only thing that will beat the little game is an uprising of taxpayers in self-defense."

INCREASING DEMANDS.

This has been a strenuous season for members of congress, both of the house and senate. With President Wilson insisting that both houses remain in session until the currency measure is passed, the members have been simply marking time. It has been a year round job these "patriots" have signed up for and the net result is that many members have slipped away from Washington, by ones and twos, until there is not even a majority of either house on hand when the time comes for action. Representative Mann, the minority leader of the house, recently demanded that the missing members of congress be recalled to their duties and it was intimated that if they did not care to fulfill their obligations they should resign. The result has been nation-wide publicity of the condition that exists and the net result will be that at least a working majority of both houses will be on hand and all the time in Washington from now on. The increasing demands on congressmen has been the subject for much discussion. An exchange says:

"It is no special peculiarity of the American congress, and it is due to no particular defect in the American system of government that a quorum in one house or the other is occasionally unobtainable without recourse to a 'call' or summons. Nearly all the great legislative bodies of the world have a reduced attendance in the transaction of routine business. Even when important bills are under discussion in a large percentage of the membership waits for the ordinary business before appearing in ordinary sessions of congress the attendance has always averaged well, comparatively speaking. Extraordinary sessions in the last five years have greatly increased the demands upon the time of both representatives and senators. This year it is probable that there will be no interval—no recess—between the adjournment of the extra session and the convening of the regular session. Little more than a month elapsed between the last regular session and the present session. Whether President Wilson will be able to obtain all the legislation he is desirous of having enacted from regular sessions during the remainder of his administration is a question. At all events, matters seem to have reached the pass where only those who can afford to give up everything to public life can now afford to become representatives or senators, and this leads to consideration of the question whether the character of representation in congress will be impaired or improved by practically eliminating from it the busy man of affairs. Is it possible that, instead of further centralization at Washington, the tendency in the near future will be toward a system of devolution whereby the several states will relieve the federal authority, in legislative as in other respects, of some of its responsibilities? The alternative to this seems to be a congress that will remain in session continuously, or else such a simplification of congressional procedure that business can be transacted with greater expedition."

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan are great pacifiers, but the question of whether or not this country will engage in war with Mexico, in any beyond their control, and in the hands of Huerta. If he refuses to be denounced, the refusal amounts to a declaration of war, and our only alternative is to fish or cut bait. If we back out, we will be the laughing stock of the world, and if forced to accept, it means a great deal more than a skinship, and the nation can well afford to prepare for the emergency. It is to be hoped that Huerta will have the good sense to retire.

Democratic victories, in various parts of the country, indicate the weakness of divided opposition, and the folly of a three-cornered fight. If the republicans and progressives are wise, they will get together on some common ground before the next national election. There may be a lot of satisfaction in bull-headed obstinacy, but it is destitute of either profit or glory.

Mrs. Pankhurst is fortunate in being able to witness an American election fight in Illinois is largely due to the vote of the women, and there was no window-smashing to mark the event. Should the state of Wisconsin ever secure a county option law, there will be no question as to results.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffragette, has christened Governor McGovern, the Premier Asquith or the Charles First of Wisconsin. Well the governor need not feel offended at the high sounding title for really Premier Asquith is one of the great men of the world.

Glenn H. Curtis now announces that there will be flying motorcycles next. After having dodged these infernal machines for some two years past, it would seem that they have reached the flying stage already.

The New Jersey men who killed the cats and then discovered it was bullfrogs that were killing the chickens furnish another argument against capital punishment.

A St. Louis newspaper offers $100 for the best ten reasons why people should move from other states to Missouri. But any one reason would be worth more than that.

Fall styles in women's suits are said to include hip pockets. It's a good bet the pickpockets won't find them any handier than handbags.

It is reported that the Mexican federalists lost 600 in the battle at Chihuahua. The half dozen others ought now to be in the mood for peace.

Representative Underwood need not worry if he is compelled to leave congress. He has qualified for the revenue cutter service.

John Armstrong Chaloner is sane in Virginia and insane in New York. But New York has that effect on a good many people.

A Chicago statistician says married people really live longer than single people—that it doesn't merely seem longer.

An Illinois court holds that a man can be beautiful. Not, however, while he is replacing a tire on his automobile.

Supposing the senate investigating committee catches that lobby, what does it intend to do with it?

It is wrong to accuse President Wilson of being a lobbyist. He has a private room in the capitol.

On the Spur of the Moment

The Diary of the Bonehead.

I was a reasonably happy man until a friend of mine handed me a poultry journal and went on his way. I read the poultry journal on my way home on the street car and the seed of ambition was planted. I would make a million dollars in the chicken raising business and would leave a lot of hairs to fight over my will.

Straightway I began to spend what I had saved for chicken impedimenta. That was last spring. Something over $300 went into that chicken plant. I bought wire fences, incubators, chicken food, egg testers, hens, roosters and about four hundred books with pretty pictures telling all about the hen and her habits and characteristics.

Then I started into the chicken raising business while my neighbors looked on and smiled. When I was a young man I wanted to play the band and when I reached middle life I wanted to raise chickens. These two ambitions happen to every man. I was merely satisfying my ambition and it was none of my neighbors' business.

More things can happen to a young chicken than can happen to any other form of life, feline or floral, and everything that was possible to happen to a chicken happened to all of mine. Yesterday I sold the machinery and good will of my chicken plant for $9.65 to a gentlemanly junk man. But yesterday, I hired a man to go and give my friend of the poultry journal a catalogue of a silver plating machinery concern and I started my friend out on a wild career in the silver plating business. I think our accounts are about balanced, or will be within a very few months.

Washington Notes.
The congressional library is called the great show place of Washington. Belasco and Proctor and Earl & Klawns have done here some show there and neither does Buffalo Bill or the Ringlins, but it is a great show place just the same.

The building is of the Italian Renaissance style of architecture and of course you know what that means, and its cost exclusive of the site was $6,032,124.54. There is some dispute as to what the 54 cents was for. Perhaps it was for the books. It is pure white covers three and one-half acres and it had an ash can standing by the back door and a bill collector standing at the front door. It would remind one strongly of my residence back home.

The largest book in the library is "Webster's Unabridged Dictionary" and the smallest is "Elbert Hubbard's essay on 'Silence'." There are several fine paintings on the wall, but will not attempt to describe them as this paper goes into the home and one cannot be too careful. The one feature of the library which struck me forcibly is the silence. One must wear gum shoes and slip along as quietly as a congressman who is trying to get an appropriation for a new federal building through congress. In the reading room no whispering is allowed and a person who wears false teeth which click is not allowed to chew gum. It is a great place to go and think over the deeds of a mis-spent life. There is enough silence manufactured in that place every day to supply all of the present needs of Col. Roosevelt and ex-Governor Sulzer and last them a long time in the future.

One of the remarkable things about the congressional library is that it was built within the amount of money appropriated. So far as is known this never happened before and is not liable to happen again.

On Monday only, Nov. 10, Lyric Theater will present a series of motion picture dancing lessons, produced by Kalem, in three parts or reels.

The Tango, Turkey Trot, and the Hesitation Waltz are included, and the lessons are given by New York's foremost dancers, Mr. Wallace McCutcheon and Miss Joan Sawyer, who are now giving members of the famous "400" the same instruction that you will see on the screen at the Lyric.

First, you will see the dances being enjoyed by the patrons of one of New York's most prominent cabarets. Daniel Frohman presents
HENRY E. DIXEY

Supported by Laura Sawyer and House Peters in an original drama of the underworld

"CHELSEA 7750"

Henry E. Dixey is one of the foremost favorites of the American stage. In the role of an eminent, able and conscientious detective, Mr. Dixey is afforded ample opportunity to utilize the fine powers of characterization for which he is noted. The play sounds every depth of the underworld, its secrets, its methods and its emotions, and penetrates the intricate labyrinth of the submerged half. Startling revelations, ingenious machinations, and overwhelming climaxes crowd fast in thrilling succession; and through it all the mystery and fascination of the world that lives under cover.

Performances at 2:30 and 4, 10c; at 7:30 and 9, 20c for adults and 10c for children.

The third of the Famous-Players series, following "Tess" and "In the Bishop's Carriage."

Following this will appear Lillie Langtry in "His Neighbor's Wife," Laura Sawyer in "An Hour Before Dawn," and James K. Hackett in "The Prisoner of Zenda."

RIO JANEIRO.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slawsh."

RIO JANEIRO is one of the world's greatest surprises to those who believe that America ends at Key West, and that south of that point the Indians are still fighting of the descendants of Pizarro and other eminent hold-up men.

Rio Janeiro is the capital of Brazil. Those who have not consulted an Atlas since 1867 and who have known Brazil merely from its coffee are inclined to wonder what need the country has for a capital. The same kind of a human scallion who wonders whether the inhabitants of Kansas, dress in skins or calico, and who declines to explore his country west of Canada's Corners, Connecticut, is likely to believe that Rio Janeiro is composed of grass huts festooned with 35 foot anacondas, and that the well-known moistness of the Amazon river makes it very unhealthy in the rainy season.

These beliefs would create a good deal of amusement in Rio Janeiro, which is a city of about a million up-to-date people situated just below the thorax of Brazil on the Atlantic ocean, and so far from the Amazon river that many of its inhabitants have never heard of it. Rio Janeiro has the finest harbor south of New York, and all steamers of any social standing whatever call there while passing. This harbor is profusely decorated with mountains on three sides, and the famous Sugar Loaf peak, which is a natural decoration placed there in the early Pliocene era, is greatly admired by all travelers. Rio Janeiro's real name is "San Sebastião do Rio de Janeiro," but the full name is only used by the leisure class. The city was founded in 1567 while North America was still a howling and shaggy wilderness, and has been a South American capital since 1680. The age of the side streets in the older portions can be accurately calculated by the amount of dirt on them, but the main streets are broad and handsome, and Rio Janeiro has made all North American seaports look cheap by surrounding its harbor with a broad boulevard garnished with trees. When Rio Janeiro needs a new business street it bores one through the middle of the town in a manner which would fill a North American city with awe, and it spends as much money improving its looks as New York does improving the bank deposits of its policemen.

Rio Janeiro is a two story town. The masses live in lower story two or three feet above the ocean level and die of malaria with great frequency and ease, while the classes live in beautiful suburbs back in the hills reached by street cars which climb like Thomas cats.

Rio Janeiro is well known in Europe, but it is only suspected by the United States, which manages to do all its traveling thither on one or two small steamship lines. For this reason the American feels lonely and out of place in the city and has to wait for months before learning the result of the day's baseball games.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George M. New Adams

BY WALT MASON

Where now is old Ben Davis, that widely famed galeot? May guardian angels save us from Ben and all his fruit! In office and in chapel men roast that total loss, that fierce and futile apple that old Ben put across. The barber men who shave us, the boys who shine our boots, all jump on old Ben Davis, and cuss his misfit fruits. And for Ben's apple loathing will evermore endure—that wolf in mutton's clothing, that whited sepulchre. It typifies the shoddy, it's false as human sin; so slick in outer body, so bare and cheap within. The red Ben Davis apple is tempting, smooth and smart; but when with it you grapple it simply breaks your heart; you cuss the name of Davis, and grind your teeth and hiss. "Why does this monster brave us by springing fruit like this?" So gaudy fakes still tempt us, beguile us everywhere, and may the gods exempt us, and keep us from the snare!

"LILLIAN RUSSELL."

John Cort, owner of the fashionable Cort Theatre, New York, will present Lillian Russell at the Myers Theatre Tuesday, Nov. 25. The fair Lillian will head an all-star feature festival company, comprised of forty famous artists and its own special orchestra. Miss Russell is to exhibit the modern fashion gowns and general feminine fads and fancies of London and Paris, and incidentally the noted beauty will sing one or two of the sweet melodies that made her famous as the queen of comic opera. She will also depict her daily routine in the perpetuation of health, youth and beauty. This includes the skit entitled, "Mildred Disrobes," but lovely Lillian, we are told, only disrobes herself of fashionable outer garments, this in her display of Paris gowns, etc. The Cort Theatre Festival, it is claimed, is the costliest theatrical amusement on tour in America, not excepting the highest form of grand opera. The organization travels by special train, exclusively two palatial Pullmans for Lillian Russell, and six for the other members of the company. The enterprise is touring to the Pacific coast to special engagements in the Cort theatres of the far west, and a few eastern cities and towns conveniently situated as per the coast itinerary are being played on the way. This city, we are pleased to know, will be one of the favored centres.

FORBES-ROBERTSON, ACTOR KING GEORGE. KNIGHTED. ARRIVES HERE FOR FAREWELL

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and his wife on arrival in United States.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the famous Shakespearean actor, who since his last appearance here has been knighted by King George of England, arrived in New York a few days ago with his wife, who was Miss Gertrude Elliott. This is Forbes-Robertson's farewell tour in the United States.

"STOP THIEF."

There is chaos in the Carr household, for Madge, the eldest daughter of the family, is about to be married to James Cluney, when a valuable ring, the gift of her father, disappears. And this is only one of the many mysterious robberies which have taken place in the Carr household. The police are called in to solve the mystery and capture the culprit. They find a most puzzling task on their hands. Presently the ring is found and returned to Madge under circumstances which lead to the suspicion that the prospective son-in-law Cluney has been the thief. Then the absent minded William Carr, Madge's father, is discovered misplacing several articles in a most questionable manner and then at last the truth of the matter comes out. The ring was stolen by Nell, the professional thief, who had obtained entrance to the Carr home disguised as a serving maid. Most of the other valuables proved to have been abstracted by Jack Dogan, the accomplice and fluncheon of Nell and the remaining articles which have so mysteriously vanished are returned—misplaced by father Carr, who, by the way, is a kleptomaniac. So with the thieves all "stopped," the wedding proceeds peacefully. This is only part of the many interesting events which create a typhoon of fun in the new farce "Stop Thief," which Cohan and Harris will present at the Myers Theatre Friday, Nov. 28.

"QUO VADIS PICTURES."

The most amazing achievement in the photo drama world is George Kleins' production of the marvelous Cines picture "Quo Vadis," arranged in eight parts and subdivided into three acts with eight minutes intermissions between each act. Special music was composed to fit the subject and is rendered on the organ by the most talented musicians that can be obtained. The artistic note is carried out in detail and it is not to be wondered at that Mr. Kleins' production created such a sensation at the Astor Theatre in New York City, in Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and everywhere else it has been presented. Mr. Kleins' "Quo Vadis" will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre on Thursday, Nov. 20, for three days, with matinees daily.

Distribution of Travel Books

The literature describing the pleasure tours which lure the modern tourist in such numbers, is unusually attractive this season. In preparing these booklets the world is ransacked for interesting photographs, while the text prepared by experienced writers is a valuable contribution to the literature of travel. A series of booklets has been prepared for free distribution, descriptive of the pleasure tours of the various steamship lines this season which set a new standard for such publication. The books describe with profuse illustrations the pleasure tours to the West Indies and the Panama Canal; to the Mediterranean, the Orient and India and around the world. These books are free to the public at the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU. In their general appearance they compare favorably with the work of the best magazines. Any traveler who has made or contemplates making these journeys will find these booklets a valuable edition to his library.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT P. TERNHUNE

PONTIAC.

A stately, solemn Indian, close-wrapped in a most peaceful-looking blanket, slouched into the courtyard of the Detroit fort one spring day in 1783. At his heels followed a throng of savages, each wearing the peace-blanket and carrying some article of sale. A more harmless crowd of Indians, apparently, could not have been found in all America.

So carefully were the blankets arranged that the keenest eye could not have discovered the arsenal of rifles, knives and tomahawks that were hidden beneath their folds. The leader of the supposedly peaceful visitors was Pontiac, was chief of three northwestern tribes and one of the greatest Indians in all history. His was the plan for entering the Detroit stockade at the head of his bravest men, disguising the whole party as a band of traders. Having entered the fort, the blankets were to be cast aside, the gates thrown open to a larger body of hidden Indians, and the defenseless English garrison and townsfolk massacred.

A Massacre That Failed.
But an Indian girl had whispered the secret to the commandant of the garrison. So, when Pontiac stalked into the inclosure, he found the walls bristling with armed and prepared soldiers. It was a venture on which hung his entire career; perhaps the whole future of America's colonists. And the trick had failed. Yet Pontiac's heavy copper-colored features showed no disappointment as he calmly stalked out again at the head of his baffled followers and proceeded to lay siege to the place.

Pontiac was born on the Ottawa river, Canada, in 1720. He early became chief of the Ottawa, Ojibway and Pottawatomie tribes. France ruled Canada in those days. The northern Indians loved the French. The English never had the knack of getting on with the savages. But the French had. Hence, while the Indians were forever fighting the English, they were almost always France's loyal friends. When, in 1746, the French garrison at Detroit was threatened, Pontiac and his braves rescued the fort from peril. In 1755, when the British general, Braddock, blundered into a French and Indian death-trap near Pittsburgh, Pontiac is said to have led the Indian section of the attack.

Then, in 1760, when the French lost Canada to the English, a New Hampshire officer—Major Rodgers—marched to take possession of that fort. Four hundred Indians lay in ambush to destroy the troops. Pontiac persuaded the 400 lurking savages to give up the idea of attack. Then he met the colonists and escorted them safely to Detroit. He was prepared to be the Englishmen's friend. But the colonists did not treat him as he thought so great a chief ought to be treated. His friendship turned to hate. He plotted to destroy every Englishman in the west.

The Great Conspiracy.

The Indians have seldom stood together in any strong or permanent confederation. Yet such was Pontiac's genius that he combined numbers of tribes into one mighty league against the English. He mapped out a fine plan of campaign. There were 12 important frontier forts held by the colonists. Pontiac arranged that at a certain date each of these forts was to be attacked and destroyed and the surrounding country ravaged. He himself moved against Detroit. The Indian girl's treason to her people saved that fort from surprise. Pontiac then besieged Detroit. But Indians have not the knowledge to conduct a long siege. When once the Detroit garrison sallied forth against Pontiac's camp, the colonial troops were driven back again with terrific loss of life. But Pontiac was forced to give up the siege. This wrecked his whole plan of conquest. For, though the Indians captured eight of the twelve forts and spread terror throughout the western settlements, yet Detroit had been the key to the whole situation. And Pontiac's failure to capture that stronghold had lost for him the trust of many of his followers. Some of the tribes deserted. The confederation fell to pieces. The war dragged on until 1765. Then a treaty was signed with the English, an Pontiac became outwardly peaceable again. The great conspiracy had failed. Before another could be formed a Kaskaskia Illinois Indian, in 1769, was bribed by an English trader to murder Pontiac. The price offered for the crime was a barrel of whiskey.

The Illinois assassin crept up behind Pontiac in the forest and treacherously killed him. The mighty chief was buried at St. Louis with military honors, and his adoring followers avenged his death by nearly wiping out every Indian tribe and family in all Illinois.

"What's the matter with your wife? She seems very frascible lately."
"Why, she was assisting at a rummage sale and somebody sold her new hat for 35 cents."

A Gentle Hint.
"Is your dog a photographer?"
"Now what makes you ask a fool question like that?"
"I merely noticed that he tries to snap everybody he meets."

NEW PENSION COMMISSIONER WILL PAY $153,000,000 TO 815,000 PERSONS IN YEAR

Gaylord M. Saltzgeber.

Gaylord Miller Saltzgeber, the new commissioner of pensions, ranks high among paymasters. This year he pays out nearly $153,000,000 to about 815,000 persons on the pension list. Mr. Saltzgeber succeeds James L. Davenport as commissioner of pensions and is from Ohio. In his state he has held several high positions and was for one term a state senator. Being a veteran of the Civil war himself, he is in thorough sympathy with the veterans. The picture shows him at his desk in the pension office at Washington.

SHE COULD TELL TALES IF SHE WOULD

Mrs. Harriett G. Daley.

Mrs. Harriett G. Daley, the chief telephone operator at the U. S. capitol at Washington, could probably tell more about the inside workings of public affairs than anyone else in Washington if she wanted to listen to telephone conversations and talk about them. If she listens, which she probably doesn't, and if she would talk, which she won't, the telephone wires of about six hundred national legislators are under her supervision and she could tell some interesting tales.

AFTER CONVENTIONS FOR YEAR OF FAIR

James A. Barr.

San Francisco has started out to bag as many conventions and congresses as possible during 1915, the year of the Panama-Pacific exposition. One man, James A. Barr, is giving all of his time in the effort to induce societies in various parts of the world to meet in the exposition city year after next.

MUST WIDEN PANAMA CANAL TO 600 FEET IN 20 YEARS, SAYS DE LESSEPS ENGINEER

Philippe Bunau-Varilla pointing out the Culebra cut on a bas-relief map of Panama.

Twenty years from now the Panama canal will have to be widened to 600 feet, since its present width of 110 feet will be inadequate to handle the ship traffic, says Philippe Bunau-Varilla, engineer-in-chief of the canal under Ferdinand de Lesseps from 1884 to 1891.

"The Panama canal, which was thought when projected to be perpetual, is just good enough for the beginning, and should be transformed into the 'straits of Panama,'" said Bunau-Varilla. "This idea of a sea level canal could not be carried out within time and money limits by working on land, but it can be done easily in the course of ten years by the much more powerful and cheaper system of dredging and transporting the refuse of water. The expense will be relatively small."

Bunau-Varilla believes the canal will do big things for the far west. "The country west of the Rocky mountains, after the canal is opened, is slowly but inexorably going to become the Europe of America," he says.

Griego.

When the American army marched down into Mexico a song that continually sounded from camp began, "Green grows the rushes, O!" The Mexicans heard this line repeated so often that finally they began to call the Americans by the first two words, which they pronounced "grin go." Hence "Griego."

HALF STAMP SALE PROCEEDS GOES TO LOCAL SOCIETIES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 7.—Fifty per cent of the proceeds derived from the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals will be retained this year by the local health society in each locality conducting the sale, according to an announcement made today by Dr. Hoyt Dearholt, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Tuberculosis association. It is provided that the sum retained must be spent for public health work and not for some other purpose.

"In buying seals every citizen can be satisfied that the entire amount of his purchase benefits his community, whether it is spent by the local society or the state association," said Dr. Dearholt. "Each local movement is brought into being by a state-wide sentiment created through a state-wide campaign."

"The state legislation for example, such as the state subvention of county sanatoria, the rural nurse bill, the amending of the liquor license bill that the money from licenses can be used for health work, the compulsory commitment of careless consumptives, the dry sweeping law, the roller tower law, and many others secured through the work of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association effect each locally. The work in schools, traveling exhibits, lectures, etc., are returns which come directly to the community. The little money invested each year by the people of Wisconsin in Red Cross Christmas seals brings bigger returns than any other expenditure for a public purpose made by the people."

Perfected Stained Glass.

A Birmingham (Eng.) firm is stated to have a valuable invention on the treatment of stained glass windows which is being patented. As now constructed the picture on a stained glass window can only be seen from the inside of a building by daylight, but this invention makes it possible for the picture to be seen after dark, when no light is shining through it from the inside. Some windows already placed have proved satisfactory.

Arbor Day. The annual planting of trees under state auspices on a certain day is said to have been suggested in 1865 by H. G. Northrop, secretary of the Connecticut board of education. In 1872 the custom was adopted in Nebraska and later spread to other states. On March 17, 1885, the Pennsylvania legislature authorized the governor to designate a day for the planting of trees. He set aside two, one in the spring and one in the fall. Arbor day was inaugurated in Ireland in 1904.

Post-Mortem.

"I suppose," said the sympathetic neighbor, "that you will erect a handsome monument to your husband's memory?" "To his memory?" echoed the tearful widow. "Why, poor John hadn't any. I was sorting over some of his clothes today, and found a pocketful of letters I had given him to post."

The atmospheric pressure is still high in the East, with attendant fair, cool weather. Freezing temperatures were reached in the middle Atlantic and Appalachian mountain states. The area of low barometer in the Northwest has extended over the entire region; between the Mississippi and the Pacific, and southward to Mexico. It is attended by rising temperature in the Middle West, and by increasing cloudiness and scattered light rains on the Plains. Rain continues falling on the north Pacific coast and throughout the Columbia basin.

The Evening Chit-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON

SOMETHING WRONG.
A FEW days ago I heard that the husband of a dear little friend of mine was seriously ill. Yesterday, when I called on her to ask for the invalid and inquire if there was anything I could do, I was astonished to find her alone. Her husband had gone back to work that morning. Of course I congratulated her on his quick recovery. Her eyes blazed. "But he hasn't recovered," she cried. "That's the terrible part of it. He ought to be right here in bed, and he's gone back to work because he's so afraid of losing his job. Why even when he was the sickest, and suffering agony he was still worrying about that job. When I think of it I get so angry that I see scarlet. Oh no, not angry at him, of course; just at things in general. It seems to me something must be dreadfully wrong when a man who knows how to work and wants to work as much as Jack does, isn't perfectly sure of a good place somewhere."

Something is dreadfully wrong. And how anyone can blink that fact is beyond my understanding. I have a friend who is a large employer of labor. He is a kindly, intelligent man, devoted to his family and generous to his friends, and yet I have heard him assert over and over again that things are all right, that this social agitation is nonsense, that there is no foundation for the feeling of unrest in our working classes, and that practically all laborers get as much as they can.

Can you understand such an assertion on the part of an intelligent, kind-hearted man? I cannot. When men fight over jobs as if they were bones, as Jack London puts it, when an intelligent man who wants to work cannot find a position in which he can support a small family, when a man at death's door must worry about his job, when some women work nine and ten hours a day for a wage on which they can barely support life, and cannot possibly save for sickness or old age, when other women wear diamonds in their heels, and spend enough on their pet poodles to support a large family in comfort, when other men manage to earn a billion dollars in a lifetime, things are not all right, they are somehow terribly wrong. I don't pretend to know just where the trouble is, or how it can be corrected, or if it can be entirely corrected while human nature is human nature, but this I know—that things are not right, that a great many men and women do not get what they earn, and that a great many men and women do get what they earn, and that a great many men and women do get what they earn, and that a great many men and women do get what they earn.

And anyone who can sit back calmly content with things as they are, is either blindly selfish or selfishly blind.

A commercial traveler who found trade very bad wrote home in a very melancholy mood, whereupon the head of the firm wired: "If you cannot get enough orders to make your expenses you had better return at once." CHESTNUT TIME.
This delicious nut is so good in many ways that those who are fortunate enough to have plenty are to be congratulated. As a stuffing for fowl they are a great delicacy. Boil and mash and season well with butter, salt and red pepper. The addition of bread crumbs helps in filling a large turkey. Mushrooms or oysters may be substituted for part of the chestnuts, if so desired. Onion, thyme or sage is added for seasoning. Plain boiled chestnuts, mashed and seasoned, are a delicious dish served as a vegetable.

French Chestnut Soup.—Peel and boil a quart of large chestnuts in salted water, remove the brown skins and chop fine. Add a teaspoonful each of salt and sugar, the rind of a lemon and a quart of water; bring to a boil and cook slowly for an hour. Rub through a sieve, add two quarts of veal or chicken stock, a teaspoonful of parsley, finely minced, a tablespoonful of flour and butter well blended, and season with red pepper. Simmer twenty minutes, stirring all the time. Put through a sieve and serve. A yolk of egg well beaten may be added just before serving, if so desired. It makes a richer soup.

Chestnut Pancakes.—Beat separately the yolks and whites of three eggs, add three-fourths of a cup of cream, a tablespoonful each of butter and sugar with sufficient flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder to make a batter. When the cakes are baked, spread with chestnut puree, seasoned with salt and mixed with a little cream. Roll the cakes and fasten with toothpicks. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and brown in the oven.

THE TABLE.
Lamb Chops a la Marseilles.—Pan broil, on one side, six French chops, cover with mushroom sauce, and serve. Mushroom Sauce.—Brown one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour, and stir until well browned; then add one-half cup of chicken stock, one cup of chopped mushrooms, and season with salt and pepper.
Deviled Tomatoes.—Three tomatoes, sliced, and pepper, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of mustard, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, few grains of cayenne, yolk of one hard-boiled egg, one egg, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar.
Wipe, peel and cut the tomatoes in thin slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, and saute in butter. Place on a hot platter and pour over the dressing made by creaming the butter, adding the dry ingredients, yolk of egg rubbed to a paste, egg beaten slightly, and vinegar, and looking over hot water, stirring constantly until it thickens.
Oysters a la Somerset.—One pint of oysters, one tablespoonful of chopped mushrooms, three tablespoonfuls of butter, one third cup of oyster liquor, one-half cup of chicken stock, salt, pepper, cayenne, four tablespoonfuls of flour.
Parboil and drain the oysters. Reserve the liquor strain, and set aside for sauce. Cook onion and mushroom in butter for five minutes, add the flour, and pour on gradually the oyster liquor and chicken stock. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne.
Remove the oysters from the pan, and cover with sauce. Shape oysters, and cover with sauce, and cool on a plate covered with stale bread crumbs. Dip in egg and stale bread crumbs, fry in deep fat, and drain on brown paper.
English Rolled Wafers.—One-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of butter, one cup of flour (sifted), two-thirds cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of ginger. Heat the molasses to boiling point, add the butter, then slowly, stirring constantly, flour mixed and sifted with the ginger and sugar. Drop small portions from tip of spoon on a buttered inverted dripping pan two inches apart. Bake in a slow oven, cool slightly, remove from the pan, and roll over handle of wooden spoon.

CHARMING FROCK OF NAVY BLUE VOILE

Miss Ina Claire.

Rarely has any newcomer to the London stage been acclaimed with such unanimous enthusiasm by the critics as has Miss Ina Claire, the young American actress who made such a success in "The Quaker Girl" in this country last year. She is now playing "The Girl from Utah" in one of London's leading theaters. Miss Claire was born in Washington, D. C., and is not yet twenty-one years of age.

Every Day Talks for Every Day People

By FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

One of the problems that confronts the average housewife is how to prepare appetizing dishes which contain nutritive qualities. In this class macaroni might be classed as one of the first to reach the household. It is both nutritive and also cheap.

However, macaroni needs attention to be made into a palatable dish that tempts the appetite. Simply boiling it in water, salting it and putting it on the table a stringy, watery mess will never teach your family to thoroughly enjoy it.

There are many ways that it can be cooked, however, that give the desired variation. First boil it until tender and add to it the gravy of any meat that has been simmering. This makes a most delicious combination. Add three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese and let it simmer on the stove, not boil, until ready to serve. Just before serving, add the meat, serve on a hot platter or deep dish, and you will have no left-overs.

Here is a second combination meat and macaroni recipe that is really good. Boil the macaroni, broken into pieces, in slightly salted water, until tender, drain and add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, a half cup of grated cheese, a half cup of chopped meat and mix it thoroughly. Just before serving pour over it a cup full of hot tomato sauce. It is most delicious.

The meat for these two recipes is easily found in the left-overs of the day before and can be utilized in this way when there would not be enough for a meal in themselves. Then, too, meat from a soup bone is excellent in this way and can be flavored to suit the taste.

I might add a third recipe for this dish, that of boiling the macaroni in salted water, then placing in a baking dish, dusting it thoroughly with grated cheese, dry cheese will do nicely, and putting it in the oven until it browns on top.

You might also add onions to the dish, with tomatoes and the cheese making a tasty combination, nutritive and recommended for its cheapness. No matter how you serve it, be sure it is hot when it reaches the table and it will be more thoroughly enjoyed.

The French have a dish they call "pot au feu." It is simply a combination of soup and meat that is economical and delicious. Almost any bones will do for the basis of a good soup stock. Take a beef bone, with some meat left on it, a good veal shank bone and boil them in a kettle until the meat drops from the bones. Skim off the fat that rises to the top of the kettle after it is cooled and then strain the meat from the soup proper. Take the meat, season it, shank bones, potatoes, onions, just enough to fill the dish nicely and bake in a hot oven. You have your soup for the first course, your meat and vegetables for the second. The soup stock should last for two days' meals at least.

Every housewife should have her soup kettle. Into it can go the bits of bones left from the table, the odds and ends of meat, and it should stand on the back of the stove. From it all sorts of appetizing soups can be made, while the rich meat juices can be used for flavoring purposes of odd bits of meat that you desire to warm up.

THE FOOD VALUE OF EGGS AND HOW TO COOK THEM

The housekeeper who has given little or no thought to the composition of eggs has much to learn of this very nutritive food. While the egg is in common use and probably always will be, a little more thought should be given to the best way of cooking them.

Of the simple things to remember in cooking is that the albumen in the egg coagulates at a very high temperature; hence, to have the soft, creamy consistency, be careful of extremes in heat and too long a time over the fire.

Soft Boiled or Steamed Eggs.
Almost every one likes the so-called soft boiled eggs, but not as we usually have them served to us. They should never be boiled over the fire for two, three or any number of minutes if a soft, delicious, creamy egg is desired, and I take it that is what most people like. Put four eggs into two quarts of actively boiling water, cover at once and set entirely away from heat. Let stand ten minutes. If six eggs are added let stand fifteen minutes or increase the amount of water—one egg, one quart of boiling water, five minutes. All these directions may vary according to the temperature of the eggs, as if they are very cold, of course, they would cool the water so they would have to cook longer.

French Omelet.
Material—Eggs, four; cold water, four tablespoonfuls; onion juice, one teaspoonful; chopped parsley, one tablespoonful; salt, one teaspoonful; butter, one tablespoonful; nutmeg.

Directions—Use a spider always for an omelet. Fry or fry in pan and heat too thin and the omelet would heat too quickly in the center. Put the butter into the spider and heat slowly. Break the eggs into the bowl and only heat sufficient to mix thoroughly the whites and yolks; add the water and seasoning except parsley. Draw the pan to the hottest part of the stove and when very hot, but the butter not browning, add the eggs all at once. Let them mount and then with your spatula loosen the omelet at the edge, allowing the thin portion or uncooked part to run under and so continue until the omelet is "set." Now sprinkle over the finely chopped parsley and with your spatula turn over one-third of the omelet; then fold once more as you turn it out. Serve at once.

More failures are reported us in omelets than in almost any branch of cooking. Each detail must be carefully followed to insure success. The spider, perfectly smooth, is the first requisite; then do not beat the eggs too much, twelve or fifteen beats will usually do the work, and the butter, while hot, must not be brown and smoking. These directions carefully followed—once but always—and you cannot fail.

This omelet may be varied by chopping in very fine—two tablespoonfuls when chopped—and adding just before folding. Then you have a ham omelet. Peas, tomatoes, oysters, bacon, red and green peppers, sweetbreads and grated cheese all lend variety to a plain omelet. Cream may be used instead of water.

As It Seemed to Him.
"Oh, papa," said the little boy, as he looked up at the new moon, "God has been paring his finger nails."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I wish to have a few girl friends up for my eighteenth birthday.

(1) How shall I word the invitations?

(2) How long in advance shall I send the invitations?

(3) What will I serve, the occasion being on a Friday? "M."

(4) Write a little personal note to each, saying that you would like to have the pleasure of her company at a little party you are giving at your home on such-and-such an evening, in celebration of your coming of age. If it is a formal party, put the invitation in the third person.

(5) Two weeks at least.

(6) If you set a table, the following menu will be suitable:

Fruit Cocktail
Creamed Oysters on Toast
Celery Jelly
Cheese Crackers
Mixed Cake
Ice Cream
Tea

If refreshments are not served at the table, have dainty sandwiches of egg, cheese or chopped nuts and mayonnaise with cake, ice cream and a fruit punch.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please tell me how to wash the hair.

(2) Please tell me what to do to stop itching the finger nails.

(3) Please tell me how to cure dandruff.

(4) I am fifteen years old. I have both blackheads and pimples. Would it be better for me to massage my own face? What cream shall I use and how massage it? Or would it be better to have it massaged at a hair-dresser's?

(5) My hair is also thin and short.

(6) CONSTANT READER.

(1) Beat up a couple of eggs, rub this well into the scalp. Have ready a pan of warm (not hot) water. Dissolve a teaspoonful of baking soda in a little boiling water and add it to the pan of water. Wash your hair in this. When the dirt seems all out of the hair, rinse hair well several times in fresh lukewarm or cool water.

Are you not ashamed to ask me such a question? You are a bad girl in your heart—much worse than even those unhappy girls who become mothers before they are married. Suppose you were in that wife's place. What would you think of a girl who tried to separate you and your husband?

You are going against God's commands, and you will surely be punished if you persist. Even if you succeed in separating husband and wife, the man will not marry you. He will despise you for what you are.

DR. BEATON TALKS TO ROCKFORD WOMEN

Gives Delightful Address on Scotland at Session of Woman's Club.

Members of the Rockford Woman's Club enjoyed a delightful address on Scotland by the Rev. David Beaton of this city on Tuesday afternoon. The Rockford Star gives the following interesting account of Dr. Beaton's lecture:

"Dr. Beaton of Janesville was a most eloquent and sympathetic interpreter of his well loved native land, and his talk on 'Scotland in Song and Story' was like a series of vivid pictures thrown upon a screen—some pictures, revealing not only facts as they are, but the deep underlying influences, inherited and ingrained, which are the powers behind the deed."

"He began with a stirring tribute to Scotland, the land, not only of beauty, but of classic association—not only a delight to the eye, but a land brimful of allusions and associations that make life worth living—associations, of the most splendid groups of magnificent men, Wallace and Bruce, the patriots; Burns and Scott, the literary stars and Knox, the religious leader and statesman, for it is a peculiarity of Scottish life that its religious leader should be also its political leader."

"Dr. Beaton's stories were all illustrative of the prominent characteristics of Scottish life—the thrift, the 'dourness,' the humor. He began by quoting the old joke, that a Scotchman has no sense of humor; that it takes a surgical operation to introduce a joke into his understanding; and then proceeded to prove by an hour of practical demonstration, that the maker of that joke was all wrong and that a Scotchman is the most delightful entertainer the world can produce."

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

A very good little book useful in training the reasoning faculty in geography is "Exercises and Problems in Physical and Political Geography," by Alfred E. Logie, published by A. Flanagan Co., Chicago. This book may be used in the seventh and eighth grades.

The Halloween party at the school building Monday night was greatly enjoyed by all present. Nearly every student was in attendance. Several interesting lantern slides were shown and the reflectoscope attachment of the stereopticon was used successfully.

On account of the necessity of repairing the furnace on Friday the training school was not in session. It is expected that a Saturday session will be held some time in November for the benefit of the country teachers.

The geography class will spend five weeks making a special study of Wisconsin.

John Byrne, the faithful janitor of the Jefferson school building, has been obliged to give up his position on account of sickness.

The principal of the training school is now prepared to give evening talks on educational topics, and illustrated lectures on a variety of interesting subjects such as "Yellowstone National Park," "Down the Hudson," "Life of Abraham Lincoln," "Petrification," "Historic Boston," and the like.

Twelve student committees of the school are now looking after the various interests of the school with a good deal of effectiveness.

The final program of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, contains a rich intellectual feast. This is the sixty-first annual meeting.

A school-room without a thermometer is a disgrace.

Good roads are as good for the schools as for the farms.

The teacher should do most of her school work in school.

Less than two per cent of the cost of schools is for school books and supplies together.

Philomath elected the following officers Wednesday afternoon: President, Marie Dobson; vice president, Mary Madden; secretary, Antoinette Schlosser; treasurer, Hazel Logan; historian, Ethel Carroll; executive committee, Ella J. Jacobson, Pearl Trumble, Grace Donnelly.

Many teachers assign too many words for spelling. Five words a day for four days in the week and a review on Friday, say the third grade, makes twenty words a week, eighty a month, and seven hundred and twenty for the year. Isn't that enough for one year?

Superintendent Gen. W. Davies of Sauk county, and Principal W. E. Smith of the Sauk county training school visited the school on Wednesday and gave the students very interesting and instructive talks.

Superintendent O. D. Antisdal spent an hour at the training school on Wednesday and spoke to the students while here.

Education adjusts the child to nature, to human nature, and to books.

Superintendent Antisdal and Principal Lowth went to Milwaukee to the state meeting Wednesday evening.

INCOME TAX YIELDS INCREASED RETURNS

This Has Been a Prosperous Year Throughout Wisconsin if Tax Commission's Figures Are True.

In the state as a whole the income tax to be paid by individuals has increased over 17 per cent. The records of the state tax commission indicate that the past year has been one of unusual prosperity in nearly every section of the state and the more familiarity of the public in the understanding of the law has assisted in the compilation of an increased return. The figures at the state tax commission announced today show that individual incomes will return a tax of $1,297,766.61, an increase of $138,999.59 over the same source last year.

The amount of tax to be actually collected this year will be considerably larger because bank stock cannot be used as "offset." In six counties of the state—Florence, Winnebago, Green Lake, Kewaunee, Marinette and Vilas counties a smaller tax will be collected from individuals than last year.

In six counties of the state the income tax to be collected has more than doubled. These counties are: La Fayette, Crawford, Monroe, Jackson, Clark, Adams, Calumet, Shawano, Forest, Rusk, Dunn, Pepin, and Washburn. The largest increase in the state was 413 per cent in Adams county. The individual tax collected in Adams county last year was $234.64 as compared with $1,459.80 to be collected this year. In Crawford, Dunn and Jackson counties the increase is 200 per cent.

In six counties, Richland, Trempealeau, Barron, Sawyer, Price and Langlade, the increase has been over 70 per cent, but less than 100 per cent.

In Grant, Green, Walworth, Ozaukee, Milwaukee, Washington, Juneau, Buffalo, Wood, Oconto, Taylor, Chippewa, and Polk counties the increase has been over 45 per cent, but less than 70 per cent.

In Dane, Jefferson, Waukesha, Columbia, Waupaca, Outagamie, Marathon, Door, Pierce, St. Croix, Lincoln, Brown, Eau Claire and Douglas counties the increase is over 25 per cent, but less than 45 per cent.

In Sauk, Vernon, Washington, Sheboygan, Waubesa, Portage, Barrill, Ashland, Iron, Oneida, Rock, Racine, Kenosha and Burnett counties the increase is over 10 per cent, but less than 25 per cent. In Iowa, Fond du Lac, Dodge, La Crosse and Milwaukee the increase is less than 10 per cent.

REPORT PRESENTED BY VISITING NURSE

Made One Hundred and Four Calls During Last Month—Sixteen Cases Remain Under Care.

One hundred and four calls upon patients were made by the city visiting nurse, Miss Agnes Anderson, during the month of October according to her report for that period just filed with the city clerk. She cared for a total of twenty-eight cases of which nineteen were old cases and seven new cases. Six patients were dismissed recovered, three for other care, and one died. WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Nervousness Caused by Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

"Doctor's Daughter Took It." St. Cloud, Minn.—"I was so run down by overwork and worry that I could not stand it to have my children talk aloud or walk heavy on the floor. One of my friends said, 'Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I know a doctor's daughter here in town who takes it and she would not take it if it were not good.'"

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy
A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough more quickly, usually conquering it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for spasmodic croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis. Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant. The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualacal and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination. This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, but the old successful mixture has never been equaled. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CHAPTER XIV.

Shifting Triumphs.

Replying to Holton's warning that she must do nothing that would place her in a dangerous position, Miss La Tossa laughed.

"It is nothing, I can assure you," she averred. "This is really a small matter."

"Well," grumbled Holton, "I hope so, but I shall go with you."

"You shall not," she replied emphatically.

"My dear Mr. Holton, there are no buts—you cannot, cannot, cannot come."

"This much I shall do," returned Holton with decision. "I shall accompany you to Sevilla and will remain hidden in a place where I can hear you call if you want me."

She laughed.

"My bold cavalier"—her voice was gentle—"so you shall. And if I want you I will call."

"Good!" Holton moved to his horse. "Shall we be going?"

"Yes, Ramon—Pierre," she called. The two men came to her from out of the shadows. She placed her hands upon her brother's cheeks.

"My own true soldier boy," she said impulsively, "how proud of you I am! And you were wounded and you never told me anything about it. What do you mean?"

"With a brother's aversion to sisterly caresses before strangers, Ramon pushed her gently away, scoffing.

"The idea! It was nothing. Now, if you have done with me I must return to my general."

"Yes, return," she answered. "At least you will accompany us to Sevilla."

"Oh, yes, that is on my way," was his reply.

"Then let us be going." She sprang lightly into her saddle, and in another minute the four men were on their way down the trail.

At Sevilla, which consists of about three buildings, or rather did consist of three buildings in those warlike days of 1898, Ramon took the road to his camp, while Miss La Tossa, Holton, and Pierre urged their horses in the direction of the building whose roof the young Cuban had pointed out earlier in the evening.

Perhaps fifty yards from this structure rose a thick growth of bushes, and here Miss La Tossa halted.

"You will remain here, Mr. Holton," she said, "and Pierre will accompany me."

"You will call me if you need me?" asked Holton.

"Yes, truly. And in any event, I shall come to you here after I have spoken to my countrymen."

"All right. Good luck."

She kissed her hand gayly to him, or at least Holton so interpreted her gesture, but dimly seen in the darkness. He was quite certain that he kissed his hand to her.

Fastening his horse, he waited, listening, for perhaps ten minutes. But hearing nothing, his natural impatience asserted itself, and crawling out of the bushes he disobeyed the girl's injunctions by working his way nearer the building. He finally made quite certain that there was nothing on that side of it, and crawling to the corner he peered in. And here he saw things.

First there was a fire, and around it were gathered, he judged, about fifty Cuban officers and soldiers. Their faces were somber and their manner portentous. Near the fire stood Miss La Tossa talking animatedly to several officers, who were listening to her with bared heads and other marks of deference.

As she spoke, however, a man in the uniform of a captain rose and clapped his hands. The men to whom the girl was speaking withdrew their attention from her, and as a matter of fact she, herself, appeared to make no effort to hold them.

On the contrary, as soon as the oflicer clapped his hands, evidently preparatory to speaking, she walked away from the group and gave her entire attention to this man. Holton sized him up as a grouchy sort of chap, with a jaw built more for oratory than fighting, and, in brief, a general disorganizer. He found his analysis of the fellow not to have been far out of the way before he had uttered half a dozen words.

"Countrymen," he said, "I think we all recognize that in the event of the success of the Americans, Cuba will receive no benefit whatever. It will be a case merely of changing masters. And as for me, between the

Near the Fire Stood Miss La Tossa.

Spaniards, from whose stock we sprang, and the Americans, the Yankees, who are utterly alien, give me the Spaniards. We have already felt their heel; we know what their scorn is, and their contempt—the man was lashing himself to a fury—"I, myself, was shouldered out of the trail by a young pig of an officer not five days ago, and when I drew my sword, a pig of a Yankee private knocked me down with his hand. Is this friendship? I ask you, brothers—is this what we were led to expect from our friends of the north, our saviors, our deliverers?"

"But, Juan," interrupted an elderly captain, "that is all personal. I myself have felt the contempt which the Americans feel for us, but I should be willing to suffer more than contempt for my country's freedom. I have already suffered, as you know, at the hands of our oppressors. Contempt is very mild and easily to be borne when our liberty is the reward for it. If you have nothing more than narratives of personal affronts to give us, I for one shall not be very much impressed."

"Bah!" The voice of the first speaker rose almost to a shriek. "I put my personal feelings above my patriotism! So you say! That—that was merely my beginning. Wait until I have finished and then let me hear your sneers, if sneers you have left."

"Well, well, go on, I am waiting," answered the older man.

"So," resumed the speaker, "we all know what this generous nation of Yankees, this nation so given to establishing freedom throughout the world, intends to do with the Philippine Islands. Their newspapers leave us no doubt as to that. Imperialism! That is the cry in the United States. They have received their taste of aggrandizement—and the taste is good. Have you been deaf to the talk about the American camp? What is the word you hear oftentimes among their officers? I'll tell you: 'World-power!' That is what they say: 'World-power!'"

A sort of low cry went the rounds of his hearers, and Holton could see that the speaker was bringing them one and all beneath his spell.

He sat down, looking gloomily at the ground, paying no attention to the round of hand-clapping that attended his peroration.

For a moment no one stirred. It appeared as though all were thinking, digesting the eloquence that had been poured into their ears. Then another man arose. Holton leaned forward with a gasp.

It was the spy, the waiter of the New Willard, come tonight to place the capstone upon the spell he had been weaving among the officers of the Cuban army.

"Brothers," he began, "I came here tonight to counsel prudence, and, in fact, I do so counsel you now."

Holton's face filled with amazement. What was he getting at? In a few moments he found out.

"I do most earnestly counsel prudence," he continued. "There are things that must be borne. The soldiers of the United States have come here. Well, good. We brought them here. At least, so it would appear."

"Of course, we believe that these men were sent here because of the great yearning of the United States to see us a free, unshackled country. And so they have come down here to set us free, and then, having done so, to retire with a blessing, and to contemplate with pride the growth of the republic, free and untrammelled."

"So much we know. The Spaniards will be driven from the island, and then will these Americans turn to us and say, 'Behold, here is your country; take it and develop it, and make it great, and may God be with you.' So I say prudence."

"But, on the other hand, there are some of us who may possess well-formed doubts as to the truth of the beautiful word picture I have painted for you. Yes, there are many who doubt damnably. Has the United States ever been known to talk one way and act another? To those who know the political history of that great nation, I need say no more. To those who do not, I say that governmental policies in the United States are as fickle as jades, blown willy-nilly by the winds of public opinion—they are valueless as things to depend upon; they are trivial even to consider. And yet—he raised his hand to still a rising growl of voices—"and yet, still I counsel prudence."

"Why?" roared a hoarse voice from the darkness.

"Why? I can answer you simply. Because we are weak. We have been in the field fighting for several years. But we are not soldiers. At least, the Americans say so. You have heard them—One moment, as the murmur arose again. 'Oh, no, we are not soldiers. But the Americans are. We know that. They are soldiers who have sold cloth and beans and sugar, and perchance may have sold guns! And so they are soldiers—soldiers that we do well to fear. So again I advise prudence, always prudence.'"

"If they leave us our country, good; but if they elect to retain it as another of their possessions, why, good, also. For what can we do? They will be kind to us. They will feed us so that we do not starve, and they will put trolley-cars—"

A fierce yell interrupted him, and, although he raised his hand, he could not again regain attention. Nor had he need to. He had done his work, and done it well. This he knew as he stood smiling at the writhing faces of his frenzied audience.

One man arose, holding aloft a sword.

"My countrymen," he yelled, "if by tomorrow night I have not plunged this into the breast of five Americans, I shall plunge it into my own throat."

A wild cheer greeted his words. Then came a lull suddenly, as though the men were seeking outlet for their emotions. And Cosnola was there to give it to them.

He held out his hand. All eyes were fastened on him. The first word had fallen from his mouth when the voice of a woman, raised in thrilling cadence, wiped additional utterance from the spy's lips.

As Holton looked the girl sprang to the speaker's side and held out her hand. And as she stood thus, the naval officer never forgot the picture.

"My countrymen," she cried at length, "I have listened to all who have spoken, and I have observed you."

Not So Crusty.

Though immortally labeled "Crusty Christopher" by Tennyson, "Christopher North" was not without his amiable side.

I have wondered whether the fever has got into your brains, and whether you are children led hither and thither by the idle words of plotters."

Cesnola sprang in front of her and pushed her roughly aside.

"I resent this intrusion!" he shouted. "I resent the presence of this woman—"

What more he would have said may only be surmised, for the girl, her eyes blazing, turned to the audience, and, with finger quivering at the spy, she said:

"That man pushed me, my countrymen. Is there no one to avenge me?" Her voice was quiet, almost unemotional, and she looked calmly around the circle. It was plain to see she was beloved of these men; but it was equally plain that the spell of the spy's words lay about their minds in serpent coils. She paused.

"I see! Chivalry has departed from among us. I must myself wipe out this gross insult."

So saying, and before anyone could move, her riding-whip flashed in her hand, and she struck Cosnola a blinding blow across the face. From the sheer shock he went down as though hit by an ax. But he sprang to his feet on the instant, his face livid with rage, his hand upon a long hunting-knife.

In another second Holton would have been at the girl's side; but before he could move, a half-dozen revolvers flashed in the hands of Cuban officers, and the deep voice of the elderly captain broke the stillness.

"Stop, Senor Cosnola. Remember who you are—and remember it well. We have listened to you, and now we will listen to the beautiful and spirited senorita."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Dinner Stories

He frowned in perplexity on hearing once more that she was not at home.

"I wonder, Jimmy," he said bitterly, "if your sister realizes that I have treated her to three taxi rides and four concerts this month?"

"You bet she realizes it," said the small boy, grinning. "That's why she's keeping her engagement to Joe Johnson a secret."

She was a good servant, was Jennie, and Mrs. Wunderliar never wished for better. But in the matter of pictures Jennie was weak. There was one in particular, which showed the leaning tower of Pisa. Every day Mrs. W. hung it straight, and every morning Jennie put it crooked. So, Mrs. W. watched.

"Now look here, Jennie," he said, "you've hung that picture of the tower crooked again! Just look at it!"

"That's just what I say, mum," returned the domestic dolefully. "Look at it. The only way you can get that silly tower to hang straight is to hang the picture crooked."

"My grandma," said the office boy tremulously.

"Nothing doing," said the manager shortly.

"Died before I was born," the boy went on, "and I ain't never had an excuse for going to the ball game."
